Mother Matters - the rights of women with disabilities to motherhood

Mother Matters (MoMs) is an Erasmus plus project that aims to support both women with disabilities to be more aware of their sexual and reproductive rights, and healthcare/educational professionals to be more accessible and inclusive in their daily work with women with disabilities.

In 2024, the activities carried out in Italy within the project included two focus groups — one with Deaf women and the other with healthcare and educational professionals — aimed at gathering diverse perspectives and experiences. The first group provided valuable insights into the specific needs and challenges faced by Deaf women, particularly highlighting the lack of accessible communication in healthcare settings and the limited social support available during the postpartum period and child-rearing. The second focus group revealed a strong interest from professionals in receiving training on accessibility-related topics, which are currently missing in existing offerings.

In response, the partnership developed a self-assessment tool and accompanying guidelines to promote accessibility, along with an online forum where women can exchange thoughts, tips, and experiences.

Efforts were also made to engage local family planning and counseling centers to strengthen community involvement and encourage inclusive dialogue around the project's key themes. An important organization informed about the activities promoted by MoMs project is Fondazione Medicina a Misura di Donna (that can be translated into English as Women-Friendly Medicine Foundation), which collaborates with Gynecology and Obstetrics Hospital S.Anna in Turin for the support of women in a bio-psycho-social approach that goes beyond pathology, in the framework of social prescribing.

Mother Matters - the rights of women with disabilities to motherhood

As part of MoMs, we carried out several activities in Spain to promote the rights of women with disabilities to motherhood and improve accessibility in healthcare and education.

We conducted focus groups in Reus with women with disabilities to better understand their experiences, needs, and challenges related to motherhood and reproductive rights. These discussions were invaluable in shaping the project's tools and recommendations for more inclusive healthcare services.

A crucial aspect of our work in Spain was our collaboration with Aspercarn (Association of People with Asperger's Syndrome). Their involvement brought diverse perspectives to the project, and two of their members actively participated in the training sessions in Seville.

One of the main events was a training in Seville, where professionals and women with disabilities came together to share knowledge and best practices on inclusive healthcare and reproductive rights. The sessions encouraged discussion, experience-sharing, and strategies to improve accessibility in healthcare and education.

Finally, we held a partner meeting in Seville to assess progress, coordinate future actions, and reinforce our commitment to supporting women with disabilities in their right to motherhood. It was a great chance for partners to strengthen teamwork and focus on the project's goals.

Focus Group Description – Netherlands

As part of the Let Her In Programme on Health Equity & Access for Migrant Women, a focus group was conducted in the Netherlands to gather insights on the experiences and needs of migrant women navigating the EU health system. The session brought together a diverse group of participants from various backgrounds, including recent migrants and long-term residents, in a safe and inclusive setting. Facilitated by programme members, the focus group explored key themes such as awareness of healthcare rights, challenges in accessing public health insurance, reproductive and mental health services, and language barriers.

Participants shared personal stories and discussed their experiences with local healthcare providers. The session also featured multilingual support staff and input from partner NGOs and health professionals who provided expert perspectives. The findings helped inform the development of more targeted workshops and resource materials, in line with EPSR Principles 1 (education and training), 3 (equal opportunities), and 12 (healthcare), aiming to empower migrant women with the knowledge and tools needed to access essential health services confidently.

Let her in (@let_her_in) - April 7: Women's Health is a Right, Not a Privilege! Did you know?

Women and girls make up 70% of the world's healthcare workforce but often have less access to healthcare themselves. Inequality in healthcare remains a major issue, impacting millions of women worldwide.

On World Health Day, we stand by this year's theme: "My Health, My Right." Every woman deserves equal access to healthcare, safe living conditions, and well-being—without barriers.

At Let Her In, we work to break down these barriers by advocating for women's health rights, education, and access to essential resources. Together, let's build a world where every woman's health is a priority!

News Literacy on Board (NEED)

Project News Literacy on Board (NEED) is an ERASMUS+ project which aims to enhance news literacy skills, which are needed to judge the reliability and credibility of news / information, and equip individuals with the skills they need to become engaged and informed participants in civic life by using an innovative approach (mainly game-based learning).

The game features a rectangular board with 34 fields, which include various categories such as Challenge, Choose Area, Lucky Field, Double Dice, and Padlock.

Players draw cards from five decks—three are focused on specific areas of news literacy, one with Challenge cards, and one with Lucky cards.

The cards contain 540 questions, divided equally among the three areas of knowledge we have defined:

- Understanding the News Landscape
- Finding Reliable Information
- Verifying News.

Second board game—focused on education to address these needs directly.

The second game will be connected to an online platform with open educational resources, ensuring a well-rounded learning experience.

In 2024, the activities carried out in Bulgaria, under The NEED project included

- Training sessions aimed at educators and trainers to enhance their capacity to deliver media literacy education through game-based learning approaches.
- Educational Tools: One of the key contributions from Nikanor was the development of innovative educational games designed to assess and improve news literacy. These tools are instrumental in helping learners distinguish credible information from misinformation.

There were 2 phases of the pilot testing of the game

- Internal testing with 4 people
- External testing with 10 participants
